BLONDE ROXBURY BEAUTY SLAIN ON QUINCY ESTATE

FATHER OF 2 ADMITS SHOOTING GIRL

Twenty-two-year-old Monica Foley, blonde and beautiful Roxbury beauty, was slain by a blast from a shotgun today in a lonely caretaker's cottage on the Crabtree Estates in Squantum.

The caretaker, Loy S. Eyster, 61 and father of two, told police that he had fired the fatal shot from a .12 gauge Browning automatic shotgun.

"I don't know how it all happened," he moaned, "but there were two men trying to get in the house while she was there and I was pointing the gun at them when it went off and she dropped. I didn't mean to hit her."

The men, he said, had fled in an automobile while he fired three more shots after them.

He had led the girl into his house, he explained, because he knew her—knew her as "Bobby" for about a year and used to receive visits from her.

But last September, Eyster declared, the girl had come to his house one midnight and after he had allowed her to bring two men into the place he was later into unconsciousness by them and robbed of $50, two revolvers and a basket of eggs.

FEARED SECOND ROBBERY
He feared repetition of the robbery, the distraught little man asserted, and that was why he grabbed his shotgun when he saw two faces in the window as he was chiding the girl for the September affair.

But police said they were in no mood of baffling circumstances connected with the tragedy and they held Eyster, although placing no charge against him. Edmund R. Dawning of Norfolk County ordered State Detective Michael E. Fleming into the case, and just before noon Eyster was taken to his little cottage to reconstruct what had happened.

ANNOUNCED BY SPECTATORS
By this time Eyster was quite calm and collected. He even smiled.

MERRILL AT QUINCY TO CHECK GAS

Dick Merrill and Jack Lambie, "coronation" round trip fliers to England, landed their giant Lockheed-Electra plane at the Squantum Naval Air Base in Quincy at 2:40 p. m. (E.D.T.) this afternoon to check their gasoline supply.

Merrill said he planned to take off as soon as the checking was completed and more gas put in the tanks, if needed, for Floyd Bennett Field, New York.

At 3 p. m. Merrill took off for New York.

Landing of the flyers at Squantum was a complete "cross-up." They had been reported over Boston more than two hours before and following the Boston-Newark radio beam.

Half an hour before they landed, they had been reported flying at 1500 feet over Portchester, N. Y.

At that time, Merrill radioed that he had lost the radio beam and asked bearings.

The Squantum air field is on the marshes on the edge of the city of Quincy.

Shrouded at intervals by a mist and fog, Dick Merrill and Jack Lambie, flying non-stop from England, roared over the heart of Boston at 1 p. m. (E.D.T.) today at 140 miles an hour, and an hour and a half from their goal.

27,000 Workers End First Steel Strike in 18 Years

Cleveland, May 14 (AP)—Lincoln R. Seale, plant manager of General Motors' Fisher Body plant here, announced today a temporary agreement had ended a dispute which threw its 4,300 employees into idleness yesterday.

Pittsburgh, May 14 (AP)—The nation's first major steel strike in 18 years ended today with a tentative peace agreement between the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. and John L. Lewis steel union forces.

The agreement, Philip Murray of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee ordered pickets withdrawn from the company plants and an immediate resumption of operations by the 27,000 workers.

He said a tentative agreement signed with the company provided for an election by next week to determine whether the union should have sole collective bargaining rights in the company's plants.

The agreement, Murray stated, made these five provisions:
1. Immediate ending of the strike.
2. Return to work of all employees on the company's payroll.

make an entrance into a room. When called, the bride and groom, and others by their first names, the duke is addressed only as "sir," and this applies also to Mrs. Warfield, who never uses anything but this formal mode of address. The duke refers to his sovereign brother as "the King," using the word simply and respectfully.

HE PAYS THE BILLS

The former King Edward today is a calmer, less nervous person than formerly. He is reading more, and has told the friends one thing he intends to do is to "catch up with the reading I had time to do before."

The date of his wedding to Mrs. Warfield has not yet been definitely set, although it will take place in the month of June. The duke, incidentally, is paying the salaries of all servants at the chateau. Mrs. Warfield will automatically become "Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Windsor" when she marries the Duke.

Whether or this as such will be published in the official gazette is not as yet known, but the opinion prevailing is that after the marriage she will assume the royal status of the former British king.

RENT FOR BEST MAN?

Mrs. Warfield and the Duke were eloped about four weeks ago with H. G. Allen, the Duke's London solicitor, discussing their marriage plans and financial arrangements, it was learned.

It was reported the duke and Allen also discussed the legal suit filed against the author and publisher of the book "Coronation Commentary," which aroused the duke's ire because of references to Mrs. Warfield and himself.

Announcement of the duke's wedding plans is expected Monday, with the list of guests attending the ceremony probably being made public the following day.

The Duke and Duchess of Kent are expected to attend the wedding ceremony, and the former British monarch's youngest brother may act as his best man.

British Society Sees Wally's Title Fight Lost

London, May 14 (AP)—Unofficial but usually well-informed sources said today the British government appeared to have won its claim with the Duke of Windsor to keep Wallis from styling herself "Her Royal Highness" after they are married.

British society and persons to whom the distinction between "the Duchess of Windsor" and "Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Windsor" are vital matters, cited the highly authoritative "Debrett's" as conclusive proof that former King Edward VIII could not win.

They referred also to the status of Queen Elizabeth herself at the time she married the then Duke of York and contended that only an act of the King could confer a royal title on Mrs. Warfield.

Happy in Love Despite Up roar

Edward, Duke of Windsor, and Mrs. Wallis Warfield were reported today happily furthering their plans for a public wedding ceremony early next month, with members of the British royal family officially in attendance. Meanwhile the British lion was roaring over London with the cabinet bent on depriving Wallis of some of the honor which ordinarily goes with wedding a duke.

In that year, the almost official reference shown, it was claimed that heretofore the style of "her royal highness" should be confined to those of the sovereign and to daughters of the sovereign's sons.

DIKEER ELEVATED TWO

However, the present Queen Elizabeth became "H. R. H." by royal edict after she became the Duchess of York and Lady Alice Christiana. Countess Douglas-Scott received the same title by permission of George V when she was married to the Duke of Gloucester.

It also was pointed out that the present queen and the Duchess of Gloucester were descended, from members of regular back and forth father-in-law, by a special announcement after her marriage in 1922.

Today's sources maintained there was no indication that King George VI was contemplating such a step, especially in view of strong governmental opposition.

"Debrett's" the august red and gold tome on "Peerage, Baronage, Knights and Companions," points out that system of precedence for ladies of the nobility has been altered since 1917.

King Gives Medals To Visiting Troops

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

London, May 14—Britain's enthusiasm for its new King and Queen remained undimmed today as the crowd of coronation visitors gradually began to diminish following a gay banquet at which the royal family bade farewell to their royal and distinguished guests.

During the forenoon, in the garden of Buckingham Palace, King George and Queen Elizabeth presented Coronation medals to 1200 Dominion and Colonial troops.

More wild demonstrations of loyalty to the new monarch occurred late last night.

At 10:35 p. m. King George and Queen Elizabeth appeared on the flood-lit balcony of Buckingham Palace and more than 100,000 persons jamming the mall cheered them repeatedly, singing the national anthem and waving flags.

CHEERED BY THIRONG

Their Majesties again appeared on the balcony a few minutes before midnight, this time joined by Queen Mother Mary and again they were cheered to the echo.

The King and Queen were hosts to 450 guests at the grand state banquet in Buckingham Palace—the glittering official climax to the post-coronation festivities.

Thousands of commuters watched the arrival of the guests and set up a wild cheer at the arrival of the Dowager Queen Mary.

Following the banquet, the royal couple appeared on the balcony in the post-coronation festivities.

MERRILL HOPS OVER BOSTON

(ceiling). Three miles visibility. Held on your exact position. An hour earlier the following conversation was recorded at Bangor, Me., between Merrill (KHMRI) and the Newark Airport (WEET) which was also sending weather reports.

NEWARK—You are flying the north leg of the Boston-New York beam.

MERRILL—I will be in New York in two hours. Over or off Boston in 45 minutes. Everything fine.

NEWARK—Where are you now?

MERRILL—Over Freeport, Maine.

NEWARK—Come ahead.

OVER MAINE IN FOG

First report that the plane was over American territory came at 12:15 (EST) when the "Daily Express" was sighted over Freeport, Me.

The fliers, in approaching the New England coast, roared through a heavy fog which, for the most part, obscured the coast of Maine. As reports filtered into the Boston airport, officials said the visibility over the flying field was adequate for a landing and preparations were made to receive Merrill and Lambie if they wished to stop here.

But the two men were already flying ahead of schedule and it was expected they would keep right on to Floyd Bennett field in Brooklyn.

All the way across the Atlantic they were bucking headwinds but cruising all the time around 140 miles an hour. Since prevailing winds off a westward flight across the Atlantic are to the east, these strong headwinds heretofore have proved the difference between success and failure for many similarly attempted crossings.

When shortly after 10 o'clock reports came that Merrill's plane was speeding through the mists of Newfoundland, all air fields along the Canadian and American coasts were in readiness to receive the transatlantic plane if the fliers should decide to land for refueling.

The plane carried 1270 gallons of gasoline at its hopper, which appeared to be more than enough to see it safely home. And from the tenor of the message received all through the night and early morning it was evident that the two fliers were planning to make the Brooklyn air field their only stop.

At exactly 4:15 p. m. (E. D. T.) thousands of cheering Britons saw the "Daily Express" wheel down the sandy beach at Southampton for the take-off. Three hours later Lambie was at the microphone reporting steady progress.

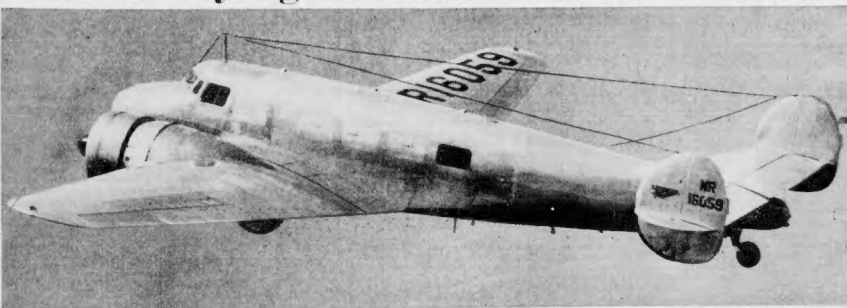

MESSAGE TO C. R.

The Radio Marine Corporation at Chatham picked up the first message at 7 p. m. and 9 p. m.

"Everything okay," said the Eastern Air Lines at Newark, where Merrill is the chief commercial pilot, heard from the flier for the first time when he reported the trip 800 miles off the Irish coast and traveling at 127 miles an hour. Then nearly every hour radio reports came from the plane as it sped toward and nearer to its destination. The message invariably ended with the words "Everything okay."

In New York "Merrill headquarters" had been established. The suite of Benjamin Smith, Wall Street broker, and least brother, was the fight. A party of friends of the two fliers sat up most of the night waiting for messages.

PARENTS HAIL LAMBIE IN FLIGHT BY RADIO

Newark, N. J., May 14 (AP)—The parents of Jack Lambie spoke to him by radio today as he winged his way with Dick Merrill over Nova Scotia toward the end of a London-New York flight, but they didn't know if he heard them. State at the time kept the Eastern Air Lines radio from receiving messages from the plane, and the staff feared the message from here might not have been heard on the plane.

"Hello, Dick and Jack," Dr. John S. Lambie said. "We are glad to see you are on schedule time and that the weather is fine."

"This is one of the biggest thrills of my life," said Mrs. Lambie.

NEW FEDERAL BANK SUIT HEARING ASKED

Contending that hearsay evidence was admitted at a hearing before a Federal court master, John W. Coughlin, counsel for the closed Federal National Bank, today asked Judge Eliza H. Brewster to recommit the master's report for a new hearing.

Coughlin argued that Daniel C. Mullover, former president of the bank, should be allowed to testify in the suit for $116,700 brought by the State Bank Commissioner for four subsidiary banks of the closed institution, charging that the Federal Bank misused their funds.

COUGHLIN ARGUES
Some time ago Mullover sought to become a party to the proceedings by intervening, but the court denied his motion.

The report of Master Arthur Black was submitted to Judge Brewster Dec. 31, 1936, and has been pending since.

Summing up evidence given before Master Black by witnesses, who had no authority to speak for officials of the bank, according to the defense, Coughlin declared:

"There was no evidence given to show these witnesses had actual knowledge of what they said."

Arguing against the motion to transmit the master's report, Sol Leonard, counsel for plaintiff subsidiary banks, stated:

"The statements by officers and employees of the Federal National Bank were properly admitted by the master, and his findings based thereon should be sustained."

BANK INVOLVED
In negotiating for the plaintiff banks, officers and employees of the Federal stated they were acting for B. After control was ac-

HOW FLIERS SET RECORD

Here is the radio log of the Dick Merrill-Jack Lambie westward transatlantic flight (all times are Eastern Daylight Saving):

The first message cracked through the air at 7 p. m. last night, about three hours after the takeoff. It said:

"Everything okay."

12:10 A. M.

"Traveling 137 miles an hour. Eight hundred miles west of Ireland. Everything okay."

1:05 A. M.

"Nine-hundred miles from Ireland. Flying on instruments (dial) at 5000. Everything okay. Will call every hour."

2:05 A. M.

"Everything still okay. Flying about 1500 feet. Picked up tail wind."

At 2:30 the fliers asked for weather reports along eastern coast.

Lee Mason, Bangor, Me., radio operator, sent the following message:

"Ceiling Newfoundland 3000 feet; ceiling Nova Scotia 3000 feet; ceiling Bangor, Me., 4000 feet; ceiling Portland, Me., 4000 feet; wind south six miles per hour."

3 A. M.

"Everything okay. Flying at 1500 feet. Burning 45 to 49 gallons of gasoline an hour. Speed has picked up to 160 miles an hour. Reckoning is about 450 miles off the Newfoundland coast. That's all."

4:05 A. M.

"Flying on top at 1500 feet. Burning 45-48 gallons per hour. Speed 140 miles. Thirteen hours of gas left. No position. All okay."

5:05 A. M.

"Everything okay. Greater speed. (The Bangor, Me., station reported difficulty in receiving Merrill's message.)"

7:10 A. M.

"Over Central Newfoundland. Okay."

8:05 A. M.

ROXBURY GIRL FOUND SLAIN IN QUINCY

on occasion although newspaper photographers and curious spectators followed him, and he told them so.

With Lieutenant George W. Fallon of Quincy police and Detective Fleming he was driven to the scene of the tragedy. He stopped at the edge of the main road, East Squantum street, and pointed at the direction the fleeing automobile had taken.

Then the chamberlain over the money paths that led to his cottage, stopping to agree with authorities that two skilled operators were found were places he had called to fire at the men as they ran.

The little group vanished into the cottage, followed by Mrs. Robert E. Eyster, a police stenographer who was taking down every word the Eyster said.

TELLS OF FAIR FLYING
So far it had been all very matter-of-fact, with Eyster chatting and smiling at his investigators. But when he reappeared in the doorway with the shotgun in his hands, the best of the spectators watched in hushed expectancy.

Eyster's face and eyes were pale as he pointed the gun and pointed out directly from the doorway to Lieutenant Fallon and said:

"I fired from here. The two of them were running, but they were close to each other. Then I stepped down and fired from there (pointing with the gun) and there—"

"How could you see so well at one stroke in the morning?" asked Lieutenant Fallon.

"It wasn't so dark," replied Eyster. "I could see the two of them for quite a distance. They scattered there (indicating a point about 40 feet from his door) and then they jumped into the automobile and raced off."

Eyster moved forward to the place where the first shot was. He raised the gun and could be heard to say:

"Like this—"

Suddenly he expelled photographs who had been snapping away while he was in the door. He shouted at them:

"You'd better get out of here. This thing might go off."

Nobody believed the gun was loaded, but the newsmen scattered. Eyster pointed to the house of a neighbor, George Ashworth, about 50 yards from his own place, and told investigators in substance:

"When the car got away, I ran over to Ashworth's and I saw No. Ashworth in his doorway. I yelled to him as I was running towards him."

TITLED "CALL THE POLICE"
"For God's sake call the police and tell them to send an ambulance. I shot somebody."

"He said he'd already called police when he heard the shots, I said."

"Well get some one on East Squantum street to stop that car."

"He said he'd already told police about the car because he'd seen it, too."

Eyster said that he had yelled "Call the police" many times during the interval of the shooting, trying to attract attention.

Ashworth confirmed him on that point.

Quincy Caretaker Shows How He Killed Girl

"When she dropped to the floor, I ran to the door and fired at the two men like this—" Roy S. Eyster, Chabree estate caretaker, in whose Squantum cottage beautiful Monica Foley was slain today, is showing Lieutenant George W. Fallon of Quincy police what followed the tragedy.

Eyster maintained that he was aiming his shotgun at two men he thought were going to rob him when the first blast killed the girl.

telling authorities that he had heard yells while the shots were being fired and that he had seen the automobile speeding past his house after the last report.

Ashworth and his wife, Constance, also confirmed Eyster's story of having been badly beaten in September, losing two teeth.

TOLD ABOUT ROBBERY
They said they remembered seeing him one day and asking him they had no complete explanation, was that Miss Foley's belongings were scattered around the Eyster cottage. Her coat and hat were in different places in the living room, her pocketbook in the kitchen.

Eyster told them that Miss Foley came to the place "sometime after midnight—probably about 2 o'clock," authorities explained. The first alarm of the fatal shooting came at 1:25 from a neighbor of Eyster.

Although East Squantum street, the only road out of the estate, was blocked about a minute later, no car passed, cruiser cars ordered to that spot reported.

The site of the tragedy is a large wind-swept spot on the neck of Quincy known as Squantum, a large tract of land once owned by the Rev. Letta Crabtree, internationally famed actress.

Monica Foley had been there many times, it was learned, mostly as a visitor to Eyster's place.

The girl's mother said she seemed quite fond of the caretaker—whom she knew as "Pop"—and that Monica had left home about 10 o'clock last night, presumably to go to the movies. The mother said she didn't know about any plan to visit Eyster.

and how did you get her in all this?"

"She said she had come in a cab, but she didn't say why. She told me the front door was locked out because I didn't see any cab as I didn't know her."

"Then I started to look her up because the last time I had seen her—"

"I had let the three of them into the house that time and when I turned my back they slipped me. When I came to I was gone out of my pocket and I found three shots at them. They had jumped into a car and were driving away while I was firing."

"I was pretty excited, of course, but I ran over to Fred Ashworth's house and I banged on the door and they let me in. I told them what happened and asked them to call the police."

"I stood in the room then and waited for the police to arrive. They came pretty quick."

"That's the whole story, except that I knew the girl fairly well on account of having been visited by her a number of times. Sometimes I gave her small sums of money. I first met her when she and some other girls were visiting the Crabtree estates and we got friendly. That's all."

Vittorio Veneto, Italy, May 14 (AP)—Four houses were crashed in the village of Corla today under a landslide, in which at least eight persons were killed and eight others injured.

"I pointed the gun at us and then the other, waving it back and forth and yelling. I told her to get out of the place. She let me go."

"Suddenly—I don't know just how—the gun went off and she dropped."

"I could still see the two men outside and I ran to the door with the gun in my hands and I fired three shots at them. They had jumped into a car and were driving away while I was firing."

ECKENER STORY MAY ZEP CRASH CAUSE

Lawrence, N. J., May 14 (AP)—All the evidence developed in three days of testimony and a number of painstaking searches of the Hindenburg wreckage was submitted today by Dr. Hugo Eckener, chief of the Zeppelin company and potentially the most important witness for the complete department's investigation here of the tragedy.

Although Dr. Eckener was thousands of miles away in Vienna when the great ship crashed in flames May 6, killing 35 persons, members of the three-man inquiry board say he will be one of the most important persons to testify. To give him full opportunity to go over the stories told by Navy experts, ground crew members and crew survivors, the board called off the fireworks today.

STUDIES PHOTOGRAPHS
Besides studying the testimony, the board arranged to view with the American investigators motion pictures and newspaper photographs of the disaster in the hope that Eckener's knowledge of the ship would help him detect the hidden or overlooked cause which sent the Zeppelin flaming to its doom.

Whether Dr. Eckener would testify in the latter case was uncertain, however. Working with Eckener in his survey of evidence were the other members of the official six-man American investigating committee. One point American investigators hoped Eckener might be able to clarify was whether the dirigible probably valued some of his high-inflammable hydrogen before she blew up.

ROSENDAHL'S GUEST
This is one of the questions which apparently must be answered for officers of the Zeppelin, but the investigating board deferred testimony on them until Eckener had a chance to interview them. Dr. Eckener was a guest of Commander Charles E. Rosendahl at the naval air station. Sentries guarded his privacy. His witness will be given precedence, officials said, and he will be permitted to view the black remains of his dirigible without witnesses, if he desires.

Paid and noticeably weary after his race from Vienna to New York, Dr. Eckener returned shortly on arrival here early today.

TO ACCEPT FINDING
Dr. Eckener in a statement said Germany had intended to accept the fact transatlantic service in cooperation with the United States before it had hoped to substitute non-inflammable helium for hydrogen.

In answer to a written question whether he would accept findings of the American inquiry, he wrote: "Of course, we will accept such findings."

On the question of sabotage he said: "Only if definite clues point to sabotage could we accept such a conclusion."

State Funerals for German Zep Victims
Frankfurt, Germany, May 14 (AP)—State funeral services for 25 Germans who lost their lives in the explosion of the Hindenburg will be conducted at Cuxhaven May 22 when their bodies were recovered from the liner Hamburg.

After the services the flag-draped coffins will be sent to scattered centers of the country for burial in the victims' home towns.

Missing Twins, 16, Hunted in 6 States
Boston police today enlisted the aid of police agencies of six states in their search for South Boston twins, 16-year-old Francis H. and Robert W. Jeffrey, of Telegraph street, who vanished from their home last Monday.

The parents of the twins advanced the belief the boys may have headed for New York, or for some summer resort along the New England coast. Robert, his family stated, took his bicycle along with him. Neither of the twins were supplied with money.

Mrs. Connell Rites Set for Monday in Malden

Funeral services for Mrs. Katherine Flattery Connell, 72, of 22 Prospect terrace, Malden, prominent vocal teacher and organist in Greater Boston for 50 years, will be held Monday at 9 a. m. at Immaculate Conception Church, Malden.

Mrs. Connell died yesterday afternoon at Deaconess Hospital after a short illness.

For years Mrs. Connell was vocal teacher in the grammar and high schools of the Immaculate Conception Church, Malden. During that time she was instrumental in the organization of many girls clubs and musical groups.

During her 50 years as a church organist she played at the Immaculate Conception, Malden; Church of the Assumption, East Boston; Immaculate Conception, Everett, and Sacred Heart, Malden.

She was the daughter of the late Nicholas C. Flattery, a lieutenant in the ninth regiment in the Civil War. Her late mother was Margaret O'Mara.

Mrs. Connell was the mother of the late Nick Flattery, sports editor of the Boston Evening American, by a first marriage. Her first husband was the late Thomas Flattery, deputy collector of the port.

Other children by this marriage were Miss Mary Flattery, a nurse, William Connell, of the Boston American editorial staff; James and Joseph Connell, of the Boston American editorial staff; and three grandchildren, Evelyn, Diarmid and Theresa Flattery and James Connell, Jr.

Burial will be in Holy Cross, cemetery, Malden.

FIVE CHILDREN SAVED IN FIRE
Stumbling down smoke-filled stairs, aided by a police officer, two mothers carried five children to safety today as flames broke out on the second floor of a three-story South Boston house in West 5th street.

The fire caused damage estimated at $1500.

Patience, Ernest, Fanny, assistant, Mrs. Margaret, Gill from the first floor with her two children, and Mrs. Fannie, Lagg, on the third floor, with three children, while fleeing, were rescued by Mrs. Alice Power, a neighbor, who heard flames crackling in the second-floor bedroom of the adjacent house.

That apartment is occupied by Mrs. Margaret, Gill, who was at the time, according to Mrs. Power.

Children saved are Mary, 3, and Annie Gill, 1, and the three children of Mrs. Lagg, Violet, 6; Edward, 4, and Frederick, 2.

REPORT GROWS HUGHES WILL QUIT BENCH

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, May 14 (INS)—Rumors abound in Washington of resignations from the United States Supreme Court as soon as the die is cast, one way or another, in President Roosevelt's fight to enlarge the court's membership.

Hereafter, these rumors have centered principally on the aging justice Louis B. Brandeis, who in his 83d year; William Van Devanter, 78; and George Sutherland, who has just passed 75.

But today a brand new rumor carried currency in the capital that Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes is contemplating stepping down from the bench some time after the high court recesses in June.

HUGHES CHAGRINED
Like the others, the rumor concerning Chief Justice Hughes' self-effacement was impossible of confirmation—or, for that matter, of positive denial. Those close to Hughes, like his associates, sense his own content. But it is significant that several highly placed persons who know, or used to know, Mr. Hughes rather well are loath to credit it.

The chief justice has been sorely tried and a little chagrined by the storm which he now finds beating around "his" court in his 76th year, after six years of diligent effort to reform court procedure and keep it abreast of its docket.

INDICATED HIS SENTIMENTS
Plain indication of his feelings were apparent in the only two public utterances which the chief justice has made since the Roosevelt reorganization scheme was put forward—his letter to Senator Wheeler, in which he refused the administration's contention that the court as now constituted is unable to keep up with its work, and his address to the American Law Institute a few days ago, in which he delicately as he could, bespoke a free and independent judiciary as democracy's greatest bulwark.

Mr. Hughes has written and lectured on the considerable length concerning the court and its work, opposing of judges at 70. But in so doing, he observed significantly that a more plausible case could be made out for compulsory retirement at 75. He has now crowned that line. And Mr. Hughes has always been noted for consistency throughout his long and distinguished public career.

Cut by Attacker
Walter Burke, 29, of Columbus avenue, Roxbury, rushed to the aid of a screaming woman on Shawmut avenue, and sustained cuts on the hands from a man who was attacking the woman. His assailant, the woman remains unidentified.

HOOVER WARNS BOYS' CLUBS OF GANG EVILS

New York, May 13 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover warned boys that congested city streets used as a playground by boys "make gangsters and feed jails."

In an address at the closing session of the 21st annual convention of Boys Clubs of America, of which he is chairman, Hoover said: "The world in the streets is a distorted and dangerous world, which the parents cannot change or remake. Natural qualities of sportsmanship and a boy's affinity for hunting with the pack are not so good on the pavement as on the green. The pack turns to the gang, where his super-abundant vitality leads him to degradation, and here he makes gangsters and feed jails."

Rename Mt. Wilson For Roosevelt

Washington, May 14 (NS)—The $10,000,000 Passamaquoddy Bay, Maine, tidal basin power project, kicked around among half a dozen government agencies for the last four years, finally has landed in the lap of the National Youth Administration, at least temporarily.

The NYA will take over the village, built to house construction workers on the now-bailed tidal basin project, this summer as a sort of technological training summer camp for 250 youths of New England.

Boston May Sell Ship Supplies

Lifting of seafaring restrictions on ship supplies today placed Boston in an excellent position to increase its harbor business. Announcement has been made by the Boston Port Authority that the maritime commission in Washington has abolished the rule requiring ships to be supplied with foodstuffs only at the port of final call. This Boston is now in the position of cutting into the food supply monopolies so long enjoyed by New York harbor merchants.

DOLAN APPEAL ON CITY SUIT PRESENTED

Former City Treasurer Edmund J. Dolan's appeal from a $171,579.57 verdict for the city of Boston, growing out of alleged mismanagement of municipal funds, went before the court last night.

Exceptions from the decision handed down by Judge Edward F. Hanley in Suffolk superior court, ordering Dolan to pay that amount to the city, were submitted to the full bench of the Supreme court today on briefs, together with a 700-page transcript of the 21-day trial.

STOCK PROFIT CITED
Judge Hanley's decision found Dolan had profited to the extent of $131,161.90 in secret profits on sale and purchase of stocks and bonds through a brokerage house which the city alleged was a "dummy" concern. The remainder of the $171,579.57 was awarded as interest.

Exceptions are taken in Dolan's appeal to Judge Hanley's denial of a motion for jury trial and to certain admissions and exclusions of evidence in the trial. Dolan was not represented by counsel at the Supreme Court review today.

JUDGE ARGUES
Robert G. Dodge, city attorney who opposed Dolan's appeal, argued for the city of Boston against the former treasurer's appeal.

Contentions in the city's brief are:
1.—That the lower court properly denied motion for jury trial.
2.—That the court properly ruled the City of Boston was a proper plaintiff in the case.
3.—That admissions and exclusions of evidence were properly ruled.
4.—That there was no error in the superior court's award of the fine at Boston was awarded the verdict.

COUDMAN PROBE HEARING TODAY

A special meeting of the Finance Commission investigating the mysterious theft of books and records of the Coudman Hill Construction Company was called for noon today by Chairman David Lacker.

The books were reported stolen on the eve of the Finance Commission's probe of the company in connection with alleged "gift contracts" made to the company by the city.

At this meeting the Finance Commission, it was learned, will decide what action, if any, shall be taken against officers of the company for failure to produce the books after summonses for these documents had been issued.

William J. Driscoll, president and treasurer, and Thomas J. Flanagan, bookkeeper, reported the books had been stolen from Flanagan's unlocked, parked automobile on Morton street, Dorchester, according to the commission.

It was also understood that the commission will consider City Councilor John F. Dowd's request that no public hearings be held until Mayor Mansfield returns from Los Angeles, where he is attending a mayor's conference.

Pair Get Bail Cut In Bancroft Plot

William H. O'Brien, 51 of Belknap street, Dorchester, and Francis P. Perry, 41 of Ivy street, Back Bay, charged with attempted extortion from Hugh Bancroft, Jr., South Shore sportsman, were held in $500 each for the grand jury in Quincy court today.

Both men waived examination. They had previously been held in $10,000 each. The charges grew out of what Colchester police claim was a well-planned plot against the 27-year-old society sportsman. In which he was threatened with publication of photographs they described to him as "embarrassing."

Nursing Delegates Hear Harvard Man

Today's program for the 42nd annual convention of the National League of Nursing Education at the Hotel Statler was featured by the annual business and election sessions and a lecture by Dr. Edward P. Jenkin, clinical professor of medicine at Harvard.

Maxwell McKiver, principal of the Wake-Henry, Ct., School of Nursing, stated that progress in the development of nursing schools is being handicapped by lack of finances.

U. S. Court Upsets TYA Injunction

Covington, Ky., May 14 (AP)—The Sixth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals set aside today a temporary injunction granted by Federal Judge John Gore of the Eastern Tennessee district restricting the expansion program of the Tennessee Valley authority.

While agreeing unanimously that the injunction should be set aside, the judges Florence Allen and Charles Moorman disagreed with portions of the opinion as written by Judge Charles G. Simon.

Here's How to Win an Argument

Did you ever make a wager on what you thought was a "sure thing" and then discover you were wrong? Well, it cost a man $50 the other day to find out the population of Boston.

He bet another man that amount that the population of the province of Nova Scotia is greater than that of Boston. He lost.

That was pretty costly information, but it wouldn't have been if he had been taking advantage of the Boston Evening American's amazing book $2.75.

For in Volume III, which is being made available this week at every coupon redemption station in Greater Boston, this information is contained.

Boston's population is 787,188 (1930 figures), while that of Nova Scotia is estimated at 327,000 (1925 figures), he discovered.

Even now you can take advantage of the Boston Evening American's offer although three books have been issued. These three volumes can also be secured and they are yours for the taking.

Here's how it's done:
Pick up today's Boston Evening American and turn to page 2.

You'll find a coupon there referring to this offer. Clip it. It is numbered and when you have six consecutively numbered clippings, the redemption station, The Advertiser of which are printed on an advertisement in this newspaper pertaining to the offer.

With the coupons being 44 or 45 cents each is the giveaway price for the volume. There are two prizes because of the two kinds of bindings being offered. One is the "hard" binding, while for a few pennies more you can get the "flexible" binding, if you so desire.

SEEK BOMBERS IN PROBE OF IRISH RIOTS

Dublin, May 14 (AP)—Police today sought suspected members of the outlawed Irish Republican army, blaming them for bombing of a station of King George VI while the coronation ceremony was in progress at London.

The station, erected on St. Stephen's Green here in 1929, was blown to bits. A time fuse detonated the explosive, while thousands of pedestrians were nearby. Investigating officers discovered a contraband ammunition dump in the St. Stephen's Green district.

The case contained a large number of guns and cartridge cases.

This led to the search for Irish Republican army members, believed to have destroyed the George VI statue in reprisal for action of Dublin authorities in refusing to permit an anti-corruption parade.

Near the explosion scene, anti-British posters smashed across a wall was containing coronation souvenirs and flags.

A British Union Jack was burned in the streets by a mob. In Cork, throngs forced a newspaper to exclude from its coronation day issue pictures of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

Views Arms Race As World Threat

London, May 14 (AP)—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin warned the opening session of Britain's imperial conference today, "the international situation is difficult and even threatening."

He was elected by the statesmen-delegate to preside over their deliberations to evolve a coordinated stance on such vital empire questions as defense and communication, foreign policy, trade and migration.

"The responsibility rests upon us," said Baldwin, "to see that our deliberations not only are of service to ourselves, but also may help in some measure toward solution of those international problems which are perplexing the world."

"It will be our task to examine the causes of the present national unrest, to exchange views upon them and to consider whether there is any contribution which we, co-operating together, could make to their dissolution or removal."

HEAD TO KEEP IN ARMS RACE

Referring to the "ominous race" for armaments, Baldwin said:

"With so many of the powerful nations of the world expanding their armed forces, we in this country decided it was our duty to put our defenses in order at a cost and magnitude which you know."

(Britain has a $7,500,000,000 five-year defense program under way.)

"We deplore the necessity," the head of government said, "but we have no choice."

"At another point he declared: 'We are met at a time when the international situation is difficult and even threatening.'"

Baldwin, who is expected to resign soon from the premiership, thus keynoted the talks of Dominion and Indian Empire representatives who had fared away from the pageantry of the coronation of George VI toward the cold facts of the Empire's future.

"Questions of foreign affairs and defense shall be our main subjects," Baldwin announced.

"It is fitting they should be," he pictured Britain's vast rearmament program as making it possible for her to guard the "security of the empire overseas."

Baldwin concluded by expressing confidence the conference would solve its problems "through co-operation in unity of purpose under the crown which is at once the symbol of our partnership and the focus of our common loyalty."

A message of loyalty to the King and Queen and election of Baldwin to the chairmanship, on motion by Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, were the first business of the conference.

Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons of Australia, emphasizing that each dominion must be prepared to defend itself, made a plea for a non-aggression pact in the Pacific Ocean area.

"Australia would greatly welcome the idea of a non-aggression pact," he said.

This was a gathering of autonomous governments—not a super state—in which each controlled its own destiny. It was a step toward a greater fellowship of cooperation, and spokesmen said no attempt would be made to force upon the delegates an iron-clad policy for defense or foreign relations.

Baldwin was making one of his last important appearances as chairman of the conference, an office in which he was expected to be succeeded shortly, when he retired from the premiership, by Chamberlain of the Conservative Party.

ANTI-SEMITIC RAIDS FEARED IN POLAND

Warsaw, May 14 (AP)—Poland's Jews expressed grave fears today of a national wave of anti-Semitism violence after a night of rioting at the town of Bzesc had demolished Jewish shops, ruined Jewish merchants and left Jewish residents barricaded in their homes.

The Bzesc riots, in which many Jews were beaten, began last night after a policeman, stabbed in a fight with a Jewish butcher, had died in a hospital.

Through the streets of the town, which is capital of the province of Polensk, the cry spread:

"A Jew has killed a policeman!"

The rioting continued until 2 a. m. today. This noon, the government in Warsaw suppressed a national radical party manifesto demanding "revenge for the Bzesc killing."

Nevertheless, it was being circulated over all of Poland. Authorities were silent, and the Jews of Bzesc (better known to wartime newspaper readers as Breslau) were afraid to talk over the telephone from their barricaded homes.

So far as were known, no Jews had been killed up to this noon, but many were injured. Many Jewish shops were demolished and practically all of them looted during the night of terror.

Britain Holds Up Protest on Blast

By DAVID P. SENTER

London, May 14 (AP)—Danger of international complications arising out of the mining or torpedoing of the British destroyer Hunter with a loss of eight lives and injuries to 14 seamen lessened today with disclosure the British government plans no protest for the present.

The Hunter, a crack destroyer, launched only in February of last year, was crippled by a mysterious explosion off Almeria, Spain, while on patrol duty under the terms of the international non-intervention agreement.

Great Britain maintained an attitude of measured calmness while newspapers blazoned the incident in strident headlines and showed a disinclination to precipitate an international involvement until the affair has been sifted thoroughly.

The destroyers Hardy and Hyperion were rushed to Almeria to stand by the Hunter. Their officers were instructed to confer with the commander of the Hunter and endeavor to ascertain the real cause of the accident.

In line with the refusal to prod the affair, the government showed no concern over or undue interest in the Spanish rebel communique from Salamanca. This announcement not only declined any insurgent part in the affair but expressed "well-founded suspicion" that "another dastardly Red plot to compel British intervention" was responsible.

General opinion here was that the Hunter was attacked neither by a ship nor an airplane, but rather of one of the numerous airplane mines planted in Spanish waters.

Harry Thaw Home Foreclosed by Bank

Winchester, Va., May 14 (AP)—Mary K. Thaw, erstwhile Frederick County dirt farmer, who recently went to Berlin for eye treatment and thence to a French spa to "lose at least 37 pounds," stands also to lose her "Kendallworth" country home of 56 acres near here. Holders of first and second lien bonds aggregating $15,000 today advertised the place for sale, announcing the bonds are overdue. They are held by a local bank.

27,000 STEEL WORKERS END STRIKE

May 12 (the day the strike started) without discrimination.

3. A consent election under supervision of the National Labor Relations board not later than May 20 to determine who should be the exclusive collective bargaining agency for the workers.

4. Agreement by the corporation to cooperate with the labor board in preparing for election.

5. Pending results of the election, agreement by the company to observe the terms of a collective bargaining contract made by the union with Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation last March.

EARLE AT PARLEY
Settlement of the strike was announced at conclusion of a conference between Murray and Chairman H. E. Lewis of the corporation, in which James E. Dewey, a Federal labor mediator, and Clarence Moore, of the State Department of Labor, participated.

Lewis said the employees would lose only two days work because of the strike and that between one and three months of back-pay orders were waiting for resumption of production.

Governor George H. Earle and Mayor Cornelius D. Scully joined the conference following announcement of the settlement. Murray declined to comment on what effect the agreement would have on threatened strikes against other major independent producers who have refused to sign collective bargaining contracts with the union.

He will confer tomorrow with key-men of the steel community in a militant drive against Republic Steel Corporation and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company.

Lewis said continuation of the strike would have affected 500 workers in company coal mines and offices in addition to the mill men employees in the Allegheny works and twop lanta at Pittsburgh.

Film Studio Strike Appears Near End
Hollywood, May 14 (AP)—Peace in the film studio craftsmen's strike appeared near today as union leaders weighed a new proposal by producers.

If the offer is approved by officials, the rank and file of the Federation Motion Picture Crafts will meet in the Legion boxing stadium tonight to vote on final acceptance.

That a quick end of the two-weeks' walkout is "virtually certain" was admitted by union officers. They debated settlement terms during the night. It was understood the terms would send all strikers back to work and refer controversial points to the National Labor Relations Board.

Sizing Up Moore Family's New Celebrity

Very grave, indeed, are the two-year-old Moore twins, Frances and Catherine, as they inspect their baby sister, Geraldine, one of brand new twins who seem likely to steal the Moore home spotlight. Geraldine and the other new Moore twin, Barbara, were born at City Hospital April 29. Barbara is still there, gaining weight. But Geraldine is home in Ray street, Roxbury, where Frances and Catherine, no longer the celebrities of the family, view the situation with alarm. They're trying to see what there is about this newcomer to justify all the fuss that's made over her.

FIND $208,600 STOLEN CASH

Washington, May 14 (AP)—J. Edgar Hoover said today federal agents had recovered $208,600 in cash stolen from Mrs. Martha Blum, wealthy Denver, Col., widow, last month.

A nephew of Mrs. Blum, Joseph T. Watson, 26-year-old former medical student, Hoover said, is under arrest.

Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, asserted that Watson left Denver about the same time Mrs. Blum missed $132,000 in currency and $8,000 in bonds. He was arrested aboard an ocean liner as it approached Los Angeles on May 6.

Coffee Boils, But Police Save Day

On his way to work today, George A. Anderson of Beacon street, Quincy Point, remembered he had left a coffee pot on a lit gas burner in his home.

He told Police Officer Everett Reid about it.

Reid relayed the story to headquarters and a cruising car made the four-mile trip to Anderson's home, where the family was roused just in time to keep the coffee pot from boiling over.

BOSTON after DARK

(There are few more surprised last night than Fred Allen when he finds himself seated in Holland Hall at St. Elizabeth's with a choice assembly of persons better described as A to Z.

"Don't tell Fortland," says Fred, when he comes in. "I'm not supposed to be at large."

"We have wires out to all towns," says Geo. from his bed of pain, "so what you use may be said against you."

"Whether or not you shall be caught, in your hiding place or not," drones Benny Drohan.

"He's just getting over learning to write," says Fred, and produces a small bottle—about this big—and it appears it's a trick as to whether you can put the bottle down on the table and keep it horizontal.

It seems that the bottle won't stay down unless you know the trick, and this trick is a palming trick you can't see unless you're watching close—and how can you watch close—says Geo.—if you're standing on your back?

"I could tell you," says Fred, "but what do you think I am—a stool pigeon?"

"So this is game?" says Geo.

Only then it is discovered that Drohan is asleep. It went on like that for hours.)

Getting Away From Foolishness:

The Federation of Federal Employees dance tomorrow night in the Copley Sq. Venetian Room. . . Jimmy Fitzgerald heads the committee list. . . Then Chelsea Naval Hoop gets through H. P. K. in the new ten made for Fall. . . Sunbaths are prescribed through vacation months to cure the policeman, who's been too sick. . . And he won't be able to do it in the Army party. . . It turns out that the girl who was kidding. . . The phone operator who is Peter to people who don't know her so well, Pete to those who know her better—and a nice gal—she's the gangly-legged kid who cried on one of your stoops, the shoulders at Old Orchard when word came that Phil Payne and Old Glory were gone into the sea on that trans-Atlantic hop. . . That's how she got a new before they took off. . . While Dick Merrill was riding the dark last night her fingernails were chewed down this short. . . And she's never met him. . . Must be swell to have a heart like this. . . Or would it always hurt you? . . .

A gay named Winchell and a gay named Bernie will appear in a 20th Century-Fox movie called "Love and Hisses" . . .

Geo. (in this the couple that made "Wake Up and Live") . . . Arthur, the Brooklyn columnist, wrote the script and sez he'll probably never live it down. . . But it won't win a prize's contrast from Darryl Zanuck. . . Those Boston cops who flooded it in Louisville with the Round Man Reporter didn't get enough. . . Guess where their sentimental get-together will be held in June. . . In Boston Harbor where the water is also wet. . . They'll take a moonlight sail. . . How. . .

Three Boston big-money pools will merge, come. Second prize drops to $2.5 and third to $1. . . The 1937-38 season. . . DeColles gets another personal appearance at that Commonwealth Mall hearing you'll see more headlines—but his wife is your guess. . . You CAN get passes for the swanboats. . . Paul Conley's new comedy, white, terrible and high-powered coupe is going to be tough to keep clean. . .

Gov. Hurley's pledge that he'll have close to the line in Civil Service hits his right under the chin now, what with that prominent Republican and big-shot Democrat trying to get him to declare a non-competitive exam for the Met. Dist. Comm. engineering post. . . Ex-Mayor James E. Hagan of Somerville has a disclosure, come this week, on a lad he declares is "Somerville's real mayor" . . .

Two Pullmans go out today for the Bath (M. & N.) launching of the new Boston trawler, Winchester. . . The O'Donnell-Usen Fisheries Corp. will name them all hereafter for Greater Boston cities and towns. . . They're even calling one Brookline. . . Yankee Network has applied for television go-ahead from the Federal Communications Commission. . .

Once Over Lightly:

Charles J. O'Malley, the Boston advertising man, has celebrated his birthday in almost every country of the world. . . His 70th was partyed with two sons, Louis J. and Charles Desloge O'Malley. . . Recently he returned from an around-the-world trip, during which he called the sick Holland Hall. . .

If Federal Judge Hugh D. McEllan turns down a circuit court post, Judge George C. Sweeney will move up a peg. . . One of three new sitting probabily will retire. . . Charles W. Koerner, the Keithman, hopes for Hollywood tomorrow with his lady. . . He's aiming to sign the Hitt Bros. for another personal in the Hub. . . If he does, the Holland will vanish forever. . .

'Call It a Day' Is Merry Film

By PEGGY DOYLE

"Call It a Day," gay and charming film adaptation of the gay and charming stage hit Boston enjoyed enormously last winter, is the featured attraction at the Paramount and Fenway theaters and beautifully timed it is to the spring-fewer weather we're having.

For "Call It a Day" X-rays a day in the life of a delightful Ragats family, individually and collectively, bemused by the first touch of spring.

Pat Hunter and Frieda Inescort play the roles of Philip Merivale and Gladys Cooper who recently became Mrs. Merivale in Chicago created in Dottie Smith's stage show—that of Roger Hilton, an accountant, and his wife, Dorothy, who have been happily married for 22 years.

It is a golden day, practically a carbon copy of yesterday's Boston with the peak of the Public Garden's pastels in the breeze. The Gillies including their three offspring, Catherine, Marjorie and Ann, are having a picnic.

Hilton breaks all breakfast precedents by wanting a soft-boiled egg and a hand of cards. The Gillies, including their three offspring, Catherine, Marjorie and Ann, are having a picnic.

Dorothy, wife and mother, has had her morning's work up arranging the bath schedule for her family in a house that boasts but two bathrooms that she'll SCREAM if she hears the word bath again.

By nightfall, Hilton has become the idealist, with a wife who has sought his counsel on her income tax problems and promptly decided to sell her next affair.

'Turn Off the Moon' Proves Gay Screen Fare at Met

If all department-store owners were as "teched in the haid" as Charlie Ruggles' astrology-minded Mr. Dinwiddie in "Turn Off the Moon," Paramount newest musical comedy, the Met would switch from the editorial to the department-store employment departments pronto.

For no newspaper could ever compete with Dinwiddie's in the way of providing interesting prologues of horror. Andrew Tombs, Dinwiddie, or Ruggles, has postponed his marriage to his competent and erudite secretary, Mayjorie Gattson, for 15 years. The stars, he insists, are not right for the wedding ceremony.

Miss Gattson, whose humor gets thinner as her middle-age spread gets better, is beginning to think that the Ruggles' proposal is nothing but an idle rumor.

It is at this stage of the drifting romance that the world's fastest tap-dancer, Eleanore Whitely, saunters into Dinwiddie's and Johnny Downey, music department clerk, discovers how easy the eye can be deceived. On the vibration, Astroligist Tombs makes the forecast that if Ruggles promotes the romance of two young people who are to be married, the Ruggles' proposal will be blessed and immediately consummated.

A pleasant sequence of entertainment is provided by the scene writer through the device of a Dinwiddie jubilee day, when Miss Gattson and her middle-age spread gets better, is beginning to think that the Ruggles' proposal is nothing but an idle rumor.

It is at this stage of the drifting romance that the world's fastest tap-dancer, Eleanore Whitely, saunters into Dinwiddie's and Johnny Downey, music department clerk, discovers how easy the eye can be deceived. "Call It a Day," gay and charming film adaptation of the gay and charming stage hit Boston enjoyed enormously last winter, is the featured attraction at the Paramount and Fenway theaters and beautifully timed it is to the spring-fewer weather we're having.

For "Call It a Day" X-rays a day in the life of a delightful Ragats family, individually and collectively, bemused by the first touch of spring.

Pat Hunter and Frieda Inescort play the roles of Philip Merivale and Gladys Cooper who recently became Mrs. Merivale in Chicago created in Dottie Smith's stage show—that of Roger Hilton, an accountant, and his wife, Dorothy, who have been happily married for 22 years.

It is a golden day, practically a carbon copy of yesterday's Boston with the peak of the Public Garden's pastels in the breeze. The Gillies including their three offspring, Catherine, Marjorie and Ann, are having a picnic.

Hilton breaks all breakfast precedents by wanting a soft-boiled egg and a hand of cards. The Gillies, including their three offspring, Catherine, Marjorie and Ann, are having a picnic.

Dorothy, wife and mother, has had her morning's work up arranging the bath schedule for her family in a house that boasts but two bathrooms that she'll SCREAM if she hears the word bath again.

By nightfall, Hilton has become the idealist, with a wife who has sought his counsel on her income tax problems and promptly decided to sell her next affair.

Betty Sagendorph Bride Today
Of Richard A. Dow

THE STUDIOUS gentlemen who make a business of "sociology" can tell you all about "trends" . . . and exactly what "forces" will sway us at certain ages . . . will have to get out their adding machines and bring their calculations up to date . . .

Some will pause meditatively while moistening pencil points on the tips of their tongues and deliver a profound "I told you so" . . . while others will arrive at the conclusion that American girls are returning to the old custom of marrying young . . .

All this theoretical furor is occasioned by the fact that Betty Sago, who made the grade of Richard's love, this morning... really came out last winter, which makes her the first of the past season's debutantes to walk aliarward with a broal bouquet in her hands, and which certainly proves something of scientific consequence... as far as you and I are concerned the explanation is simply that Elisabeth was lovely enough, as she walked up the aisle on her father's arm, to make the heart

Mrs. Richard A. Dow

There were the Duchesse lace wedding veil which had been worn by her great-grandmother, and she carried white orchids with her brooch, sash gown . . . Her sister, Joan, was maid of honor, gowned in pale yellow net with a short veil cascading from a coronet of flowers, and she carried mixed spring flowers.

The "bird-sounds" gowns were similar to Joan's, except that some were lilac and some green . . . Marching in the procession down the aisle were the Misses Jane Ragie, Joan Pratt, Jane McNeil, Betty Titcomb, Constance Mattess and Dorothy

The noon wedding in Emmanuel Church, here, was a triumph, although the bridal party and relatives were entertained at luncheon at The Country Club. The brides were Miss Ewer, Thomas B. The male graduates of Mr. and Mrs. George Adam Sargent of Cassia River, who made their debut at the County Fair, were: Mr. Dow graduated from Harvard in 1904 and George to Hiev Pudding, Spee and Varity Clubs. The brides were Mr. and Mrs. George Lincoln Dow of Cam-

ELLEN BOTTOMLEY MARGERY KNOWLES MARY VAN NESS ANNE MEANS

THEY HAD A LITTLE DIFFICULTY in learning the vowel sounds and "skis" of some of the Russian songs, but the Misses Ellen Botmley, Margery Knowles, Mary Van Ness and Anne Means found that the Russian folk dances were fairly simple to master. The photographer caught this winsome quartette of society girls in one of the numbers they presented at the Russian Ball held recently at the Somerset Hotel.

A most happy surprise was the wedding of the late Charles Hazard of East Haven, when he was 85, to Miss Doris Minton, a 24-year-old carefree girl, the star of the New Haven High School basketball team.

Rev. Charles Hazard, an uncle of the bride, was officiating, as the ceremony was presided over by a friend, an ex-cop of the Civil War.

Ann C. Cabot will be the maid of honor, escorted by a friend, the daughter of the bride, who is coming on from New York to serve as an attendant.

Mr. Cabot is the bridegroom's brother. Francis, 16, attended and loved the wedding.

Mrs. Minton was a nurse, but the young folks are going to live in East Haven, the bride's part will make the home a full fledged.

A cake price was after honoring the bride, but was a 10-cent cake, as an ex-husband was Ann C. Cabot.

A dinner at the Hotel Hartford was given for the bride and her friends. Hazards wanted to see a white celebration for the popular bride.

Payrack, the other selection of Miss Marsters, ran out of the money.

Miss Marsters is wagering $2 on each of her selections today.

Miss Marsters has accepted an offer of $1,000 from Walter O'Hara, under the terms of which $500 has been given to the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser and the other $500 is being used as a betting stake.

Miss Marsters is trying to prove that by conservative betting it is possible to beat the races.

Miss Marsters makes only two wagers a day.

The balance in her betting stake at the end of her experiment will be turned over to the Basket Fund.

BEST BET—OCEAN ROLL, 4TH RACE.
Narragansett Park, May 13—Ocean Roll, a top-flight three-year-old from the Cary T. Grayson barn, seemingly holds a wide edge for fast company of his own age in the six furlongs of the Danvers Purse, fourth number on today's well balanced card.

Ocean Roll appeared to be dead on racing condition when he was second to San Caprice in a previous race. Since that defeat, however, W. J. "Buddy" Grayson has given him the charge to lead in the Danvers Purse, a six-furlong race for three-year-olds, to be run at Narragansett Park today.

Grayson's confidence in Ocean Roll is well founded. The colt has been in excellent condition since his defeat in the San Caprice race. He has been in the hands of the best trainers in the country and has been in the hands of the best jockeys in the country.

JUDGE PUFFLE - Gene Ahern

Up and just over—so we are told. This remarkable action shot was made at the Meadowbrook Farms, where the Washington Horse Show took place. Johnny Frye is shown taking "Firenze Scoundrel" over one of the hurdles. Spill would be rather messy here, wouldn't it?

Matey, War Admiral, by Man O'War, Race in Preakness Tomorrow

By BOB CONSIDINE

St. Louis, May 14—A couple of the old gentleman's boys are going after each other down at Pimlico tomorrow. But that's not all they're going after.

They're going after the Preakness, which is the most important race of the season. It's a big race, and it's a big prize. It's a big race, and it's a big prize. It's a big race, and it's a big prize.

As for Matey, he was coming like a flash. He was coming like a flash. He was coming like a flash. He was coming like a flash. He was coming like a flash.

GOOD BLOOD IN MATEY

The All-American race is a big race. It's a big race. It's a big race. It's a big race. It's a big race. It's a big race. It's a big race. It's a big race. It's a big race.

POMPHREY IS FAST

The boys are going after each other down at Pimlico tomorrow. But that's not all they're going after. They're going after the Preakness, which is the most important race of the season.

He finished it from a weak start. He finished it from a weak start. He finished it from a weak start. He finished it from a weak start. He finished it from a weak start.

way, to 1931, by Hugh Quest. It is held, Baltimore's blood race is a thoroughly hard race, rather than Louisville.

Scratch the surface of Louisville's famous front-I mean its white hooves only. Monty, John, Man O'War and Matey, on the other hand, are going after the Preakness, which is the most important race of the season.

The Preakness has never quite had the advertisement behind it Young Alfred Gwyn Vanderbilt that the derby has. Perhaps this is the fact of the matter, which of the old Baltimore plan?

Skimming the Hurdles Like an Olympian

Carl Hubbell Wins 21st Game in Row, Beating Pirates

New York, May 14 (U.S.P.C.)—Hubbell, the Giants' great south-paw ace, became the first pitcher in major league history to win 21 consecutive games when he held the Pirates to six hits for a 5-2 victory.

The screwball artist that set a new record for straight wins the previous being Duke Madison's 20.

Hubbell won 14 games in a row in winning up all year, and this victory was his fifth of the season.

The only damaging blow to Hubbell, who had won 14 games in a row, was his loss to the Pirates in the second and fourth games.

Otherwise the lucky giant ace had no trouble passing out wins and fanning three.

The Giants scored four runs in the first inning, the first of the season to have the Pirates' first winning streak of four games.

Hubbell and his Pirates' pitcher, in two days ago, was a 1-1 record.
